Professor Oleg S. Vikhanskiy

What ensures success in today's rapidly evolving global context? Although there is no straightforward answer, this question is on the mind of every entrepreneur, corporate employee, public officer and member of society.

To be successful in today's business world, a person must not only possess the right knowledge and proper skills but also be creative enough to discover and make use of opportunities where others see threats. Business professionals must also be creative enough and be able to leverage developed emotional intelligence to make things happen. In so doing, they must behave in accordance with the principles of ethics and social responsibility. This is central to the philosophy of Lomonosov Moscow State University Business School.

Extracurricular activities

Lomonosov MSU BS believes that extracurricular activities must be an integral part of education because they help to form team spirit and foster a life-long collegial network. Business School's students not only participate in the social activities offered by the MSU but also organise their own sporting and cultural events with the help of Business School's Student Union. A traditional bowling tournament is held twice per year for teams from Moscow leading business schools. The annual football, running race and table-tennis competitions have already become popular School's events. Since 2013 the Business School runs a new volunteer project in which students take care of an old country estate Ostafievo — one of the centres of Russian culture. Also in 2013 a student theatre began working.
